

Author Guidelines

Patient Safety and Quality Healthcare (PSQH)

Each issue of PSQH includes columns and feature articles. Columns usually run 1 to 3 pages long, or 700 to 2000 words, including all headings and author bios. Feature articles usually run 4 to 6 pages long, or 2500 to 4000 words, including all headings, tables, figures, references, and author bios. Author bios typically include current place of employment and job title, with a brief description of relevant degrees, certification, and an email address for reader contact.

We ask authors to avoid using company and product names in the text of articles. We do, however, invite authors to include a Technology Overview sidebar in which the companies, products and services described in the article are identified by name, including all hardware and software. We also encourage authors to include visual materials, which may include identifiable equipment as well as general clinical settings, and should be of sufficient size and resolution for successful print reproduction. Most images posted on Web sites will not print successfully. Please include captions and credit lines with all images.

All manuscripts go through copyediting. We return revised manuscripts to authors with all changes shown in Track Changes (in MS Word), for final approval. We follow the APA stylebook for articles in PSQH, including the style for references.

Our circulation is approximately 15,000. Most issues also have bonus distribution at one or more national healthcare conferences. Most of our readers are clinicians, with many serving as CMOs, CNOs, PSOs, risk managers, pharmacy directors, etc., as well as many executive-level hospital administrators. Approximately 75% of our readers work in hospitals. Our readers represent the diversity of stakeholders in patient safety, including biomedical and clinical engineers, clinical IT specialists, vendors, patient advocates, educators, and others.

We ask authors to sign a copyright release. We post all articles on our Web site (www.psqh.com) and allow free access. We supply authors with a PDF of the article when it goes to press and ask authors to include a link to psqh.com if they post the PDF on their Web sites. We arrange to have the printer send authors some copies by first class mail as soon as they are available. We grant permission to appropriate publications that want to reprint articles, as long as they give credit to PSQH for original publication. Our publisher also offers an efficient system for purchasing custom PDFs and reprints.
